HOT water

Two girls, K.C. and Jo, fresh out of prison, vow to reform their lives. They reopen a run-down waterfront marina and step into a terrifying whirlpool of trouble.

Using money from an ex-boyfriend who is a cocaine dealer, the girls move to Cedar River, a small summer resort community. They rent a run-down restaurant and boat marina, which they re-open. They do not know that it is a hangout for a vicious local motorcycle gang, who begin to terrorize the girls. K.C. and Jo appeal for help from the local sheriff, who does not help them, because he is a secret member of the gang.

The girls make friends with Luke and Bud, two Vietnam Veterans, who offer to protect the girls when the gang escalates the terror.

The voluptuous K.C., clad only in a flimsy bikini bathing suit, tests her new speedboat. She is chased by chain-wielding members of the gang who pursue her in another boat. She manages to blow them away, literally, by improvising a Molotov cocktail put together with a bottle of gasoline and the top of her bikini.

The gang's retaliation is swift. Dead bodies are discovered at the marina as the gang leader creates mayhem with a chain saw.

The gang, led by the sheriff, moves in to set the marina on fire. They corner K.C. and Jo. The girls use their quick wits combined with pure luck to bring the gang of terrorists to its knees in final surrender.

Running time 90 minutes approx.
